REPUBLICAN TICKET.

If a "Good Government Club" were in existence in this section, resolutions of congratulation would be passed in reference to the actions of our two county conventions. The republicans yesterday nominated a county ticket that will at least give the democrats a run for their money. Hon. C. C. Warner for the council, and H. M. Woods for the assembly, are names associated only with victory. The names of O'Brien and Narcross are new to the voters, but both gentlemen are highly respected in the localities in which they live.

Dayton Graham is so well thought of by his party associates as to make the vote for sheriff this fall an answer to the oft repeated question, "Is Cochise county really republican or democratic?"

Mr. Cummings, the nominee for treasurer, is a business man who has lived long in the county. We have, however, heard of no bets being made that he will be elected. Mr. H. C. Stillman is a strong candidate being well and favorably known throughout the county and possessing the requisite qualifications for the duties of the recorder's office. Mr. Willard, principal of the Tombstone school, named as candidate for superintendent of public schools, presents the novel proposition of employing a man to superintend himself. Mr. C. A. Overlock, the nominee for county assessor, is the star of the whole company and will receive a bigger vote than any man on the ticket.

Mr. Rockefeller is nominated for reelection to the office of county surveyor. Two years ago there was no opposing candidate, but in this campaign he is opposed by one of the most competent surveyors in Arizona. The supervisor ticket is a good one. Mr. Allaire has an excellent record as one of the county fathers. George Reay is a popular merchant of Naco, who lived several years in Bisbee. Mr. Noyes is a prosperous rancher living near Fairbank.

The Hon. Marcus A. Smith is now the undisputed nominee of the democratic party for delegate to congress. It is well for him and the party that the settlement of the dispute has not been longer delayed. There never was any doubt among fair minded and well informed people as to the merits of the case, but it was feared that the men who were urging Colonel Wilson on to further their own ends might keep up the discord until there would not be time for Mr. Smith to make a complete campaign. Now voters can cast their ballots in accord with their political convictions, well knowing that Mr. Smith is and always has been true to all that his party endorses, and that Governor Murphy is just as loyal to the Philadelphia platform and can be depended upon to use all his influence accordingly.

A Voter's Opinion.

BISBEE, October 13, 1900.

EDITOR COCHISE REVIEW—Dear Sir: The republican county convention, in deliberation yesterday, has placed in the field a ticket that, considering all things, is a powerful and well selected ticket.

The men chosen individually represent a large following apart from political affiliations, and the whole will prove a phalanx of warriors hard to beat.

There were some little disappointments inflicted, necessarily, but usually this is the case. It is unavoidable; and the gentlemen who may fail in their aspirations to represent their party in office will understand that this indicates no personal feeling, and they will be found among the foremost in the support of the ticket.

A sound choice was made for the important office of sheriff, and the name of Dayton Graham is well known, and his ability, energy and integrity is acknowledged.

Everybody was pleased to hear of the nomination of H. C. Stillman for recorder. Mr. Stillman is an old time resident here and bears a respected name.

That Mr. Warner should be nominated for the council seemed to be a natural sequence to the public knowledge of the services he has rendered us on a former occasion.

C. A. Overlock received the nomination for assessor. The convention would have done this had the nomination been contested, and the name of Mr. Overlock undoubtedly adds materially to the strength and solidity of a ticket that is meeting with favorable criticism from the followers of the party.

The other offices, to which the careful attention of the convention was given, were judiciously and satisfactorily filled. VOTER.

HOW SECRECY IS OBTAINED.

One Objection to the Use of Wireless Telegraphy is Being Overcome.

The difficulty of sending messages by wireless telegraphy which shall not be legible by the whole world seems to have been solved by a most ingenious device presented by M. Tommasi to Academie des Sciences at their recent meeting, says the Pall Mall Gazette. He uses at the sending station not one but two transmitters. One of these transmits the real dispatch by the usual code, while the other sends only a series of meaningless dots and dashes produced by a mechanical process. The range of this last transmitter is kept always rather less than other, so that at the receiving station only the code signals will be received. If, however, an attempt be made to intercept the signals by means of a receiver interposed between the sending and receiving stations both the real message and the meaningless clicks will appear together, with the result that the message will be utterly unintelligible. This must be almost as irritating to the would-be "tapper" as Lord Waterley's plan of splicing a piece of blind wire (that is, insulating material with no metallic core) at intervals between the posts of an enemy's telegraph. He says this is much more effective than the ordinary plan of cutting the wire merely, because in that case, when he recovers the line, the enemy knows where the break is and has only to repair it. By his plan the owner of the line has to test from post to post to discover and eliminate the obstruction.

OWES HIS LIFE TO PHILIP.

Capt. Von Dohren Truly Mourns the Death of the Famous Rear Admiral.

Capt. von Dohren, of the Hamburg-American steamer Brigavia, recalls an acquaintance made with the late Rear Admiral John W. Philip, United States navy, under conditions which made it impossible to ever forget the name of that gallant officer, says the Chicago Chronicle.

While the second mate of the German barkentine Boneta, bound from Hamburg to Corinto, South America, the vessel sprung a leak in March, 1885, during a gale and was dismantled. She became waterlogged and had to be abandoned. For 12 days the crew of nine men drifted about in a boat on short allowance of food and water, the food being but a biscuit a day and the water just sufficient to keep the tongue from parching.

Hope of being rescued had been abandoned, when a ship was sighted bearing down upon them. She proved to be the United States steamer Wachusett. Commander John W. Philip commanding. The wrecked mariners were taken aboard and landed at La Libertad, San Salvador. Capt. von Dohren says they were all treated with the greatest kindness by the commander, officers and crew of the Wachusett.

DISAVOWAL WAS SUFFICIENT.

No One Believed the Editor's Story After Seeing Col. Ball's Face.

David Ball, of Missouri, is one of the homeliest men in the United States. He knows the fact full well and does not attempt to conceal it, says the Chicago Chronicle. A few weeks ago he went up into northwest Missouri to make a speech. While en route to the big picnic grove where he was billed to talk he was handed a marked copy of the local newspaper. The article referred to was mainly denunciatory of Ball and was written presumably to counteract the usual effect of one of the colonel's little talks. Among other dreadful political accusations it said he was "two-faced." When he mounted the stump Ball started off something like this:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: Before entering into a discussion of the issues of the day I wish to correct a statement made in your daily paper that I am 'two-faced.' It is a small accusation from a small man and deserves but little reply."

Here his gestures increased and his collar began to wilt, a sure sign that he was getting angry.

"My fellow citizens," he blurted out, "do you think that if I had two faces I'd wear the one I've got on now?"

By far the most popular underwears now are those which make no pretense at sleeve or shoulder strap, but have simply a ribbon to hold them in place, which ties over the shoulder, says a fashion authority.

It is announced as a certainty that large Louis XVI. hats, which form such pretty aureoles round the head, will be much worn this summer either in soft straw, openwork crinoline, or lace. Veils, the total suppression of which was announced, are notably less in size. They keep the hair in place, and do not go further than just above the upper lip.

The deep corselet in every form and variety continues to hold sway.

There is a very strong indication that the bonnet is returning to us, small and close as heretofore.

Neckties are fashion's latest whim.

THE MISTAKE OF HIS LIFE.

He Was Successful All Along Till One Day He Was Chosen Umpire.

"I was sort of crowded out of politics," said a man whose friends at one time quoted his stock as good for the presidency of the United States, relates the Washington Star. "I had the theory of the game all right enough, but it was the effort to practice that gradually brought about my downfall. I lived in a community where there was a good deal of wealth and progressive culture. This means social pretensions and an adoption of the popular fads as they appeared."

"I believed and still believe that the successful politician must be all things to all men. For this reason I professed the most profound interest in golf, statesmanship, yachting, diplomacy, baseball, music, bicycling, business, church matters, social functions, football, good horses, belles, beaux, hores and everything else than any portion of the people might favor by adoption."

"The plain truth is that I knew something less than nothing about many of these subjects. I couldn't clearly define the difference between a home run and a catboat or tell whether allegro was a term used in music or happened to be the name of some new sewing machine attachment. By looking wise and saying little I, however, managed to gain favor as a good fellow and the patron of everything worth patronizing."

While I was at this high tide of popularity there was a match game of baseball arranged between two of the schools, and just to add to the eclat of the occasion I was chosen umpire. Instead of pleading illness or an imperative engagement for the day I was darned fool enough to accept. I wore a mask, danced around like a harlequin and proved about as amusing as one to everybody but the players. The boys became dangerously mad at my meaningless mixing of links, courts, wickets, wides, hard sports, time allowances and handicaps. I was ignominiously 'nred' at the end of the first inning and when the boys make their kick, you have no place in politics, you know."

Cables and Their Rates.

There are now 12 cable lines across the Atlantic in successful operation, yet the charge for sending messages remains what it has been for 20 years or more—25 cents a word for commercial messages and ten cents a word for press dispatches.
